

An Appeal for the Future Preservation: Of the Home and Grave of Washington (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from An Appeal for the Future Preservation: Of the Home and Grave of Washington Ladies, to the rescue! Manufacturing speculators have offered 200,000 for Mount Vernon - that spot, dear, as it should be, to all American hearts, is to be sold to the highest bidder! An American Congress has virtually declined to purchase it, and Virginia, who holds within her boundaries the sacred ashes of our Washington, joins in the refusal; and it now behooves the women of the nation to come forward to its rescue. Some months since, a noble-hearted, patriotic southern matron perceived the grandeur and the feasibility of raising funds for its purchase by the ladies; and nobly have her southern sisters seconded her efforts. And, while the sacred, solemn spot, where Washington prayed, and died, and was buried - which awes into reverence even the foreigner, and causes his heart to thrill with emotion - while this is in danger, shall we of the North stand idly by and permit his home to be sacrificed upon the altar of Mammon, forever to resound with the din of hammers, and vibrate with the clatter of the loom and the wheel? That the pure air it was his delight to breathe when he went forth to meditate shall become thick and black with an eternal smoke, as if it were the entrance to Hades self? Let us rise as one woman, and, in the strength of our united womanhood, decide that this shall not be. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
