

Hypnosis in Psychosomatics - Utilisation after Erickson

I like to begin hypnosis with the assumption that it involves an experience that includes focus, absorption, and is mutually agreed as being hypnosis. This avoids us getting bogged down in precise definitions which only generate discord and disconnections from the experience that hypnosis generates, and which is one of the main benefits it offers. What do we experience when we say we are having an experience? Experience is something that happens in the body, as a bodily felt occurrence. It can be examined intellectually, reflected on cognitively, but it primarily happens in the body.
